The 4th International Symposium of the European Association of Chinese Teaching (EACT)

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow: Chinese Language Education in Secondary and Higher Education from a Multilingual and Multicultural Perspective

CALL FOR PAPERS (N° 1)

The European Association of Chinese Teaching (EACT) organises an international symposium every two years in different countries in Europe, with the aim to strengthen academic exchanges among practitioners and scholars in Europe and all around the world, to jointly discuss academic issues of common concern, and to promote the development of teaching Chinese as a second language as an academic discipline. The first symposium was held at Eötvös Loránd University in Budapest, Hungary in 2017, the second at University College Dublin, Ireland in 2019, and the third at the University of Minho in Braga, Portugal in 2021. EACT is now pleased to announce that the 4th symposium will be held at the University of Southampton, UK on the 21st to 23rd of April 2023.

The 4th international symposium will be jointly organised by the EACT, the University of Southampton and its Confucius Institute. The theme of the symposium is “Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow: Chinese Language Education in Secondary and Higher Education from a Multilingual and Multicultural Perspective”, reflecting and continuing the common underlying theme of all three previous symposia of the EACT, that is, “regionality and internationality in the development of teaching Chinese as a second language as an academic discipline”. This year, the symposium will focus on the past development, the current situation and future trends of Chinese language education in national education systems, particularly in schools, and in institutions of higher education in Europe and elsewhere. The development of both theories and practices of teaching Chinese as a second language in Europe and beyond, as well as their impact on and insights into the development of teaching Chinese as second language as an academic discipline will be explored so as to better promote the discipline and keep it up to date.

The UK is one of the leading countries in Europe in terms of the development and scale of Chinese language education with a long history. The 4th symposium at the University of Southampton welcomes colleagues and postgraduate students from Europe and all around the world who are interested in the theme of this symposium to participate and share their academic research and teaching experiences looking at the past, the present and future of Chinese language education in different countries in Europe and the world. It is also an opportunity to explore the relationship between “International Chinese Language Education” and teaching Chinese as a second language in a multilingual and multicultural environment through exchange and reflections, and to contribute to the theoretical development of our discipline and the enhancement of good teaching practices with research and suggestions.

A scientific committee will be set up to conduct anonymous review of the submitted abstracts, and the author of the accepted abstract will present the paper in the relevant panel (each presentation is 20 minutes, including Q&A time) at the symposium.
